Research experience

I have been involved in several research projects. Most recently I was involved in the research project: Virtual knowledge sharing and the development of a digital learning environment among employees across Danish high schools, which was a collaboration between Macom A/S and Technical University of Denmark (DTU). Other research projects I have been involved with are: Two large projects regarding the inclusion of socially vulnerable people in volunteering, which was initiated by 'De frivilliges hus i Bagsværd' in collaboration with the municipality of Gladsaxe, and a research project on schooling, youth sexuality and HIV/AIDS in Eastern Uganda, which was part of my Candidate Thesis from University of Copenhagen done in collaboration with ENRICA (Danidas Enhancement of Research Capacity Program).

Teaching experience

I have been teaching at Danish universities for almost two decades. At present I teach HD2 in 'Organization and Management' at Copenhagen Business School. Before that I taught Qualitative methods to HA students also at Copenhagen Business School. At University of Copenhagen I taught: Anthropology I and II (introductory courses to anthropology for first year students), Qualitative methods (for bachelor level students) and Field methods (for candidate students preparing for fieldwork) and Methodology and Analysis (for candidate students). At Aarhus University, I taught: Anthropological Analysis (an introductory course to anthropology for first year students), a thematic course: Youth and sexuality in anthropological perspective and a regional course: East Africa (both for bachelor level students).
